Give The Married Man A Chance

To The Editor:

Does one have to lose their self respect or be one of the clique, to obtain work in times like these when work is to be had? I have seen during the past week the chance to work, but same was never offered to me altho the ones in charge knew that I as well as others needed the work, but same was turned over to several single men and boys when married men stood by and looked on. Is it not high time that when work is to be had first see that the ones who have some one depending on them for their living to be given the first chance to work. I have seen this same thing happen before now and it looks to me as if you don't belong to the select or the clique, that you can starve so far as they are concerned.

Is it not better to try and keep them working if possible instead of giving them an excuse to turn crooked? There are people in our village who need every cent they can make and who will not ask for charity, but only want a chance to make at least an existence. Some people will stand for so much and no more. The least that could be done would be to spread the work out over all who are out of work, anyway give the ones who will not ask for charity a chance to work and also remember that another election is coming and the unemployed have a large vote and could swing any local election.

A CITIZEN OF MOKENA

Lincoln Estate School Dedicated

Interesting as well as very appropriate dedication exercises were held Sunday afternoon in the Ann Rutledge public school in the Lincoln Estates east of Frankfort. The new school was built last fall and was formally dedicated as an educational institution.

Some of the high lights of a very fine program were as follows: Address by August Maue, Joliet, Will County Supt., of Schools.

Mr. Peterson who suggested the name of the school, gave a very timely talk on Lincoln and pointed out what a wonderful woman Ann Rutledge was and that he suggested the school be named in her memory as a befitting tribute to her wonderful life and character.

An essay by Mr. Schiller of Lincoln Estates on the life of Abraham Lincoln which won a prize for him in a Chicago Daily News essay contest when he was 15 years old, was read by Miss Margaret Wilson, niece of A. C. Becker, one of the school directors. Mrs. Walker, principal of this school read two very interesting letters, one from Mr. Peterson giving his reasons for suggesting the present name of the school. Another letter from a staff reporter of the Chicago Tribune was read which coincided with everything Mr. Peterson had said in his letter.

A noteworthy and inspiring patriotic touch was added to the dedication when a flag raising took place. The flag pole and its equipment was donated by Sylvester Tyler and the Parent and Teachers club of the school. The flag, 5x8 ft. was donated by Arthur T. McIntosh. The Wm. Martin Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the Lincoln Estates had charge of the flag raising. Robt. Slagle, son of one of the Veterans, raised the flag. After being flown for awhile the flag was hauled down by Robert Slagle and John Jones, Jr., the latter being the son of Commander John Jones of the Wm. Martin Post.

The residents of the Lincoln Estates are to be highly complimented for their fine civic and patriotic spirit.

Amputate Feet of Murderer of Green Garden Constable

Nature has inflicted a punishment on a confessed murderer which will be more effective than what the law might mete out to him. The figure in this case is Raymond Miller, the confessed murderer of constable Ernest Miller of Green Garden whom he shot to death while the latter had stopped him and was questioning him while he was driving a stolen car near Frankfort nine years ago.

With Miller was a woman who identified herself as Mrs. Grace Asbury of Elmhurst, Ill.

Miller had stolen the car from E. H. Edwards of Niles, Michigan, his home town.

The murderer fell into hands of the police at Toledo, Ohio after both of his feet were frozen while he was hitch hiking. His finger prints were taken by the police and sent to the Bureau of Identification in Washington where it was found that they tallied with those of the murderer of the constable. Confronted with these facts, Miller confessed killing the constable, saying he did so in self defense as he thought he was a hold up man.

When the Will County officials were notified of Miller being held by the Toledo police, complications began to arise.

States' Attorney Wm. R. McCabe of Will County discovered that the Will County Board of Supervisors had offered a $500 cash reward for the apprehension of the murderer 9 years ago, but that there is no money in the county fund to pay this reward which would have to be paid to the Toledo police if Miller was to be brought back to Will County to stand trial. Mr. McCabe said the Asbury woman who had furnished the Will County officials with full particulars about Miller after she was arrested by Cook County police shortly after the murder of the constable was committed and who would be the star witness in case of a trial of Miller for murder, was murdered herself by a man in Davenport, Iowa about three years ago. In view of these facts and the fact that both feet of the murderer have been amputated due to being badly frozen, Will County officials have decided to let the Toledo police take care of Miller and they feel that with both feet gone, the murderer is at the end of his criminal career.

So far has been written to another murder case.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Hiram L. Williamson,
Secretary
Illinois State Association

Gov. Henry Horner has placed his signature on the first bill approved by the new state legislature, a measure eliminating the general Chicago registration which was slated for January 31. The registration was considered unnecessary in view of the general registration required last fall for the November election. It was calculated that the expense of registration and revision would reach close to $500,000. The bill was sponsored by Representative B. S. Adamowski of Chicago.

A state highway construction program to cost more than $3,750,000 is getting under way, the department of public works and buildings has revealed. Most of the contracts have been awarded and call for an expenditure of more than $3,000,000 for downstate highways and more than $750,000 in seven counties in the Chicago metropolitan area. More than 175 miles will be paved in the downstate, together with grading, resurfacing, bridges and grade separations.

Pointing out two-score ways to reduce taxes by reorganizing activities and holding down appropriations, the Carlson commission on taxation and expenditures has reported to the governor and the legislature that a saving of about $16,000,000 could be made for the next biennium without seriously injuring the function of state government. Calling for united action, the commission declared it is the legislators' duty to assist Governor Horner in his tremendous undertaking to give Illinois good government at the least possible cost, regardless of party affiliation.

Use of gasoline tax funds to relieve the unemployed is limited strictly to relief needs of any township, Attorney General Otto Kerner has advised State's Attorney, C. M. Swanson of Paxton. Any distribution of funds in excess of the relief needs would be illegal. The opinion dealt with the law passed by the fourth special session last fall authorizing county boards to use their shares of the gasoline tax for relief purposes, distributing it among the townships which have the duty of caring for the unemployed.

A legislative committee of the Illinois Taxpayers association has asked Gov. Henry Horner to issue a proclamation calling for a moratorium on farm mortgage foreclosures during the present emergency and until the legislature has had an opportunity to act. The committee was selected by 40 county groups of the association. Other objectives of the group are strict economy in government and a limitation of all property taxes to 1 per cent of the full fair cash value.

The 1934 convention of the Illinois Association of Agricultural Fairs will be held in Springfield some time during the months of January or February. Officers for the new year, selected at the 1933 annual convention which just closed at Galesburg are: Earl Walker, Shelbyville, president; Joe Marquis, Mt. Vernon, vice president; C. C. Mast, Quincy, secretary-treasurer.

The biennial budget will not be laid before the legislature until Governor Horner's survey of all departments has been finished and he has decided what jobs and activities can be abolished. Heretofore it has been the custom for the incoming governor to turn in the budget largely as it was prepared during the last few months of his predecessor's term. The governor states that the job of balancing this year's budget is more difficult than he expected, but declares it will be reduced.

Laws of other states regulating the liquor traffic are being studied in the legislative reference bureau in anticipation of the repeal of the Illinois search and seizure act and the Illinois prohibition law. The legislature will consider what sort of regulatory measures the state should have should congress modify the Volstead act or if the Eighteenth amendment should be wiped out. The legislature can pass regulatory measures without waiting for congress to act by incorporating in the state laws provisions that they shall not conflict with any laws passed by congress.

Suggestions which both miners' factions have agreed to consider have been submitted by Gov. Henry Horner in a new effort to bring peace to the Illinois coal fields. The suggestions were advanced at a conference between representatives of the United Mine Workers of America and the Progressive Miners of America, held in the governor's office. There is a possibility that the two factions will give their answers soon.

One-third of the gasoline tax proceeds should be spent by the state for highway improvements within municipalities in proportion to their population, the Hunter future roads commission has recommended to the governor and the legislature. Bills are being drafted in accordance with the commission's report which urges that the second one-third of the gasoline tax go for state road work outside cities, including belt lines, and the remaining one-third to the counties. Funds available for road work amount to about $28,000,000 annually.

The federal transportation act does not relieve a railroad corporation from its duty to file a certificate of issuance of its capital stock in the secretary of state's office as required by the general corporation act of Illinois, Attorney General Otto Kerner has written Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes. The filing of the report or certificate of the issuance of stock, as provided by the corporation act, is necessary for the purpose of requiring the fee to be paid for the issuance, the opinion stated.

Gathering material on sales tax laws for a report to a joint session of the Illinois legislature on February 7, Senators Richard Barr, Joliet, and Arthur Heubusch, Chicago, have been on a trip to Mississippi where they conferred with Gov. Sennett Conner of that state and officers of the state tax commission on the workings of the Mississippi 2 per cent general sales levy. They also talked with merchants in a number of Mississippi towns. As a result of their investigation, they reported that "merchants on the whole seem satisfied and we ran across only a few persons still bitterly opposed to the sales tax."

Edward L. Ryerson, Jr., chairman of Illinois Emergency Relief commission, was in Springfield recently to furnish members of the general assembly with information regarding the relief needs of Illinois. Mr. Ryerson stated, "There is an urgent and a vital need that the state of Illinois make funds immediately available for relief purposes. Since last August, the Illinois Emergency Relief commission has been furnishing relief through funds advanced by the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The corporation has repeatedly indicated that Illinois must do something definite in making local funds available for relief purposes. A definite step has been taken in this direction through the introduction of the 2 per cent general sales tax. The state of Illinois cannot ignore the needs of the thousands of families which are dependent for the necessities of life upon our relief agencies. As a simple matter of humanity, it must make further funds available for the care of these people by the passage of this legislation."

The Agricultural Transportation association was incorporated in Springfield recently and announced through its manager, C. F. Mansfield, Springfield, a program of cheaper and more efficient transportation from the producer to the consumer and the abolishing of from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 per year in property taxes for highway, bridge and street construction and maintenance.

Another important part of the program of this organization is to work for the expenditure of all revenues collected from the operators of motor vehicles in the development and maintenance of highways, bridges and streets.

Constitutionality of the Illinois securities act has been challenged in a suit filed in the Circuit court at Springfield by the Chicago real estate bond exchange. The firm seeks a court order expunging an order of January 6 by William J. Stratton, then secretary of state, which revoked its resignation, Edward J. Hughes, who took office January 9 as Mr. Stratton's successor, has been named defendant with Mr. Stratton. The Chicago firm charged that the securities law is an attempt to delegate legislative authority to the secretary of state.

The Illinois Emergency Relief commission has announced that it could make no allocations of funds to counties for relief work in February for no funds are available. Distribution will be withheld until arrangements can be made for raising money.

Recommendations that the board of Cook county commissioners request an advance of $5,982,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation for relief work during February have been made by the liaison committee representing the board and the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. This application will be made against the county's share to issue full faith and credit bonds for relief funds. The commission will request an advance of $553,250 for use in relief work in other parts of the state. This request will be made for the state as a whole.

Representative Howard L. Doyle of Decatur has announced that he plans to introduce in the legislature more stringent bills designed to make owners of commercial trucks and busses pay their just share of highway maintenance. He also advocates more adequate policing and a legislative investigation of truck fees in other states and highway costs.

Facing the task of financing the First Methodist church of Benton, the board of trustees decided to do away with the services of the janitor, and take turns doing the work themselves.

Mrs. Inez Steed Carrell, twenty-nine, a widow from Chicago, who drowned her three small children in a bathtub in Charleston on October 21, pleaded guilty to manslaughter. Circuit Judge Murray Clark sentenced her to one to fourteen years in the Illinois reformatory for women. She had been indicted on three charges of murder but the state consented to allow her to plead to only one indictment. State's Attorney J. I. Dilsaver said the additional indictments would not be quashed but that they would not be pressed now.

WASHINGTON CROSSES the DELAWARE (December, 1776) by CLINTON SCOLLARD

THAT night upon the Delaware
Their horns the wild Valkyries blew

As though the legions of despair
Swept the impending heavens through.

The Fates and Furies rode the air
That night upon the Delaware.

The ice-pack gnawed the sodden banks,
Sundered and rocked the middle stream;

There ran a murmuring through the ranks

As at some dread, foreboding dream.
Amid the crunch of splintering planks
The ice-pack gnawed the sodden banks.

The trees seemed wan and wizened
ghosts,
And groped the mists with shriveled
hands;

Weird was that gathering of hosts,
The massing of those tattered bands.
On those inhospitable coasts
The trees seemed wan and wizened
ghosts.

Yet valorous their victory
That gray and grim December dawn;
What quenchless fires of destiny
Burned in his breast who led them on!

For us, and for futurity,
How valorous their victory!

Internal Dissension an Annoyance to Washington

On August 23, 1792, President Washington wrote a long letter to Thomas Jefferson, his secretary of state, dealing with certain intrigues between the Spaniards and several southern Indian tribes, and he added this thought:

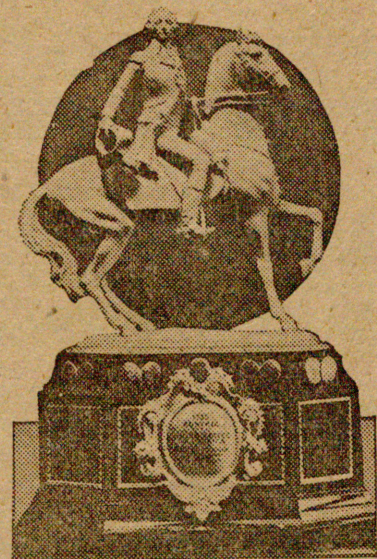

"How unfortunate and how much to be regretted is it then, that, while we are encompassed on all sides with avowed enemies and insidious friends, internal dissensions should be harrowing and tearing our vitals." He expressed the fear that party politics, which then was rearing its head for the first time in our history, would weaken and wreck the Union.

Three days later he wrote to Alexander Hamilton, his secretary of the treasury, pointing out the destructive character of party feelings:

"Differences in political opinions are as unavoidable as, to a certain extent, they may perhaps be necessary; but it is exceedingly to be regretted that subjects cannot be discussed with temper on the one hand, or decisions submitted to without having the motives which led to them improperly implicated on the other; and this regret borders on chagrin when we find that men of abilities, zealous patriots having the same general object in view and the same upright intentions to prosecute them, will not exercise more charity in deciding on the opinions and actions of one another."

The occasion for this advice was the fact that Hamilton and Jefferson had disagreed.—American Bankers Journal.

Washington Was One of Country's Richest Men

George Washington accumulated little of his wealth himself. He was a planter, whose estates came to him chiefly through others. His great-grandfather developed a large area of land. His parents opened a considerable tract on the Rappahannock. By the time of George's birth the Washingtons owned much of the land in the peninsula between the Potomac and the Rappahannock. Mount Vernon and its surroundings became his upon the death of his half-brother, Lawrence, in 1752. Martha Washington, wealthy in her own right, and the widow of a wealthy planter, brought her husband additional lands. Owning 70,000 acres in Virginia (and after the Revolution 40,000 acres in the West, which congress gave him for his services), General Washington was in his day one of the richest men in the country.

QUICK ACTION ON THE BRITISH DEBT

Mission Is Due in Washington Early in March.

Washington.—A British debt mission will be virtually on his threshold when President-Elect Franklin D. Roosevelt takes office March 4, it was indicated by Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador, on the eve of his departure for London.

The mission will be here March 4 or 5, Sir Ronald declared. The swift possible approach to the general problems involved is being sought, he said, adding that his conversation with the President-Elect at Warm Springs, Ga., already had "saved time."

After a final conference between Sir Ronald and Henry L. Stimson, secretary of state, at the latter's home estate, Woodley, every sign pointed to the conclusion that the Warm Springs discussion had really placed the international negotiations under way and that the ambassador was carrying proposals to England relevant to the economic subjects to be considered in March. The wish of both Mr. Roosevelt and State department officials, it was indicated, is to attempt to lay the foundation for some general understanding, some rough agreements at least in principle, even before the British delegation arrives.

Private diplomatic communication with Mr. Roosevelt via the State department will be established to this end with Britain shortly after Sir Ronald reaches London with his exposition of the general objectives which are in the mind of the President-Elect. Once Mr. Roosevelt selects his future secretary of state, the latter is expected to direct his attention to the problem immediately, although not yet in office.

The return of Britain to the gold standard within a period of time, and tariff adjustments to permit a better market for American products are known to be economic objectives of the next administration which London will be called on to consider.

How far Mr. Roosevelt showed his hand with respect to his attitude toward debt readjustment was not disclosed here but the assumption was that he gave Sir Ronald to understand the United States would require compensatory British action in economic realms.

Rome.—The Italian government has accepted the invitation of the American government to discuss war debts, and has instructed Augusto Rosso, ambassador to the United States, accordingly, it was announced officially. It was expected the Italian delegation would visit Washington in March.

Plot to Rob St. Louis Society Folk Is Balked

St. Louis, Mo.—A daring plot by a gang of a dozen machine gun armed and masked bandits to rob wealthy and socially prominent guests at a pre-wedding luncheon for Miss Lily Busch Magnus, great granddaughter of the late Adolphus Busch, multimillionaire brewery founder, was frustrated. Kidnaping, too, may have been planned, officers believe.

A hunt club president was beaten into unconsciousness and bound in his own home, and two other men were trussed up before the robbers became frightened and fled.

Events in Order for House Guest

Two Ways of Entertaining the Visitor Within Home's Portals.

There are two ways of entertaining house guests. One is with a succession of events, whereby they will be kept occupied. The other is to let them become, for the time being, a part of the family, entering into the usual regime of the household, and taking its daily life, with perhaps a few extras in the way of entertainments, not as an outsider, but a close friend. When guests are asked for a week-end, continual social events are often planned. It is a holiday period for most families as well as guests. It is when there are mid-week house guests, or those who are making rather prolonged visits, that continual festivities may be tiring to friends and family alike.

To be permitted to enter into the life of a family as one of it is a compliment to be desired as much as to be considered an outsider for whom one must do special things. Like all things, however, there is "a happy medium." For example, a hostess should arrange enough entertainment to introduce high lights into the visit. Are cards liked? An evening of this game or an afternoon, can be planned, whereby the visitor will meet and be met by congenial persons. A tea, large or small, to meet the friend, gives opportunity for becoming more or less acquainted according to the size of the tea and its formality or informality. Then, too, friends of the hostess generally plan some reciprocal entertainments for visiting guests.

A theater party which may consist of the family with but one or two others may prove just the sort of entertainment pleasing to family and friend alike. Or driving to some especially beautiful or notable part of the country and having tea there can give the guest a glimpse of the surroundings which will be carried away as a happy memory to visualize.

It is a mistake to so strain at entertaining that the pleasure of visiting with the guest is lost to the hostess. After all, friends come to see and enjoy the family, or else they are but casual acquaintances. For a guest to realize or to discover that her visit was a tax on her hostess robs the time of its happy aspect. Unless there are plenty of servants in a household where continual entertaining is going on, the homemaker's energies are drained, and the visitor's nervous system alike. There are occasional gala periods when house guests and family revel in a series of festivities. A few days of rest and relaxation are necessary afterwards to make the balance right and restore normal times.

SHORT STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

FARMER BROWN'S BOY DIGS A PIT

IT HAPPENED in the middle of the summer that Farmer Brown's Boy one day took his shovel and down in one corner of the garden started to dig. It was in a corner where nothing was planted, because right in that particular place the soil was so sandy that nothing would grow. So it was a good place to make the pit which Farmer Brown's Boy had made up his mind to dig. A pit, you know, is a hole straight down in the ground. And this was a good place for a pit because it was out of the way, a place of no use for any other purpose, and at the same time was right where the pit could be of the most service.

First He Marked Off a Big Circle and Then He Dug and Dug and Dug.

You see Farmer Brown's Boy was going to dig that pit for a purpose. It was to be what Farmer Brown calls a compost pit. You all know that the little plants draw their food from the earth. If the earth has no food in it plants cannot grow, any more than we can grow without eating. The food which the plants need, and which their roots take from the earth, is largely composed of very fine particles of vegetable matter which has rotted away. It is this which gives color to soil and makes it black and what Farmer Brown would call rich. When you find pure sand there is none of this matter mixed with it, and that is why plants cannot grow.

Now in this pit which Farmer Brown's Boy had started out to dig he meant to help Old Mother Nature make a lot of this food for the plants that he might use next spring to make the plants of his garden grow. In that pit when it was finished he would from time to time throw the fallen leaves which he had raked up, and old sods and some dressing from the barnyard, all sorts of things that would rot and so make food for the plants. Such a pile rotted away is called compost, and this was to be a compost pit. You see Farmer Brown's Boy believes in being prepared and he was already making plans for next year, when he meant to have the finest garden anywhere around.

So as he dug that pit he whistled. He says it is always easier to work if you whistle at the same time. First he marked off a big circle, and then he dug and dug and dug, throwing out the sand in a pile on one side. By and by that hole was so deep that only Farmer Brown's Boy's head appeared above the ground. Still he kept on working, and at last only the very top of his head could be seen. That pit was now so deep that it was hard work to throw the sand out.

"I guess it is deep enough," said Farmer Brown's Boy, stopping to rest. "I'll make the sides nice and straight and smooth and then I guess it will do."

So after a while he smoothed the sides with his shovel, and when he had finished he had a pit with sides perfectly straight up and down, and almost six feet deep. In fact it was so deep that he had to rest his shovel against the smooth wall and climb up on that in order to get out.

"If anybody tumbles in there, they won't get out in a hurry," said he as he looked down into it. "They would need wings to get out. It is too deep to jump out of, and they couldn't climb those steep sandy walls. I guess I'll have to keep an eye on this to see that no one gets caught in it."

Of course he meant his little friends of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest. You see he knew that many of them often visited his garden, and it might be that, not knowing that the pit was there, one of them would carelessly tumble in. With his shovel over one shoulder and whistling merrily, he tramped home. When he had gone the garden was just as before save that down in that far corner was the great pit he had dug. But of this none of the little people save Sammy Jay knew. Sammy had watched Farmer Brown's Boy dig it. But Sammy said nothing about it. He was puzzled, and in his shrewd way he kept thinking and thinking the matter over and trying to decide what it could be for. At last, because he could think of no other use for it, he made up his mind that it must be a kind of trap.

And yet he didn't like to think this, for he had come to think a great deal of Farmer Brown's Boy, and to look on him as a friend. So he made up his mind to keep his tongue still and wait and watch. Time would tell.

Renovating the Umbrella

TRY THESE DISHES

WHAT to eat and how to prepare it, is the daily problem of thousands of housewives all over the land. The foods in season in one section are not always easy to find in another, but certain staples can always be depended upon, yet are not always economical.

Apples are most always available. The apple ranks high as a healthful fruit. The following will be found a most tasty dessert:

Tasettes.

Mix together one cupful of chopped apple, one cupful of soft brown sugar, four tablespoonfuls of flour blended with six tablespoonfuls of butter, one beaten egg yolk, one-half cupful each of milk and raisins and fold in the egg white beaten stiff. Pour into six buttered cups and steam well covered one and one-half hours. Turn out and serve with a warm custard.

Veal Heart.

Wash, trim and slice crosswise a calf's heart. Dip the slices in seasoned flour. Fry one small onion in one-fourth pound of sliced bacon fat, bacon removed, brown on both sides. Arrange in a casserole, pour over hot stock, add one-half chopped pimiento and green pepper, salt, pepper and a bit of bay leaf. Thicken slightly and pour over the meat. Cook slowly, closely covered two hours. Serve with the bacon and tart jelly.

GRAPHIC GOLF

AVOID OVERSWINGING WITH IRONS

OVERSWINGING with iron clubs is a fault hard to get rid of. Many golfers employ the same swing for a short iron shot as they do for wooden club play. In his early years Francis Ouimet had difficulty curtailing his swing for the irons to somewhere between the half and the full swing and still strike the ball a crisp blow at the same time. Then while in England in 1914, preparing for the British Amateur tournament, he stumbled upon the secret. Anxiously watching Hilton's brisk strokes in the hope of discovering how the latter played these shots, the present amateur champion observed that the Englishman gripped the club with his right thumb on top of the shaft. Ouimet tried it, and lo! the over-swinging was stopped. It was impossible for him to over-swing with the right thumb in this position. If you have the same fault with your irons, try out this particular panacea.

One of the advanced spring fashions shown at the National Retail Dry Goods association's convention in New York was this debutante's suit. The name of the so-called Governor Winthrop desk with the slant-top, according to the New York Sun, originated with the Charak Furniture company of Boston. JESUS TEACHING BY PARABLES—THE GROWTH OF THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Mark 4:21-34.

GOLDEN TEXT—They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain: for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea. Isaiah 11:9.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Sharing Our Stories for Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Into All the World. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Great Growth From Small Beginnings.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Spread of Christianity.

I. The Parable of the Candle (vv. 21-25).

The Word which is sown in the parable of the Sower (vv. 1-20) is not only to bear fruit, but to shine forth in testimony. This obligation is enforced by a solemn command and warning. "Take heed what ye hear" (v. 24) means that there should not only be attention to what is taught, but whole-hearted reception of it.

II. The Parable of the Growing Grain (vv. 26-29).

This parable is peculiar to Mark. In the light of the purpose of Mark, it is clear why it should appear here. It is the parable for the servant. In the previous parables (vv. 24-25, cf. vv. 1-21), the responsibility of the hearer is set forth. The responsibility here is that which devolves upon the servant who proclaims the message.

1. The attitude of mind of the gospel preacher (vv. 26, 27). He should with the utmost fidelity "cast seed into the ground," preach the Word, and leave the results with God. The spiritual processes of God's Word in the soul of man are shrouded in the deepest mystery. The seed, should "spring and grow up, he knoweth not how" (v. 27). When the sowing has been intelligently and faithfully done, the sower should not be burdened with anxiety. He can "sleep and rise night and day," confident that the Almighty will take care of the processes and results.

2. The processes of the spiritual life are gradual (v. 28). "First the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear." We should not expect maturity of Christian character at once any more than the farmer should expect the crops to mature at once. The farmer has a time of sowing, of growing, and of harvest.

3. The consummation of the spiritual processes (v. 29). Though the sowing of the seed be done under difficulties and the processes of development long drawn out, the harvest will surely come.

III. The Parable of the Mustard Seed (vv. 30-34).

In this parable the plant with its great branches, called a tree in Matthew 13:32, which springs out of the small seed, exhibits the Kingdom in its mystery form, Matthew 13:11. It shows the condition of things in the world in the interval between Christ's going away and his coming again. In this parable three things claim our attention.

1. The unimportant beginning (v. 31). It begins as the least of all seeds but grows to be the greatest among herbs. The parentage and humble circumstances of Jesus greatly perplexed the people. That twelve unlettered men, most of them fishermen, should be selected as his royal advisors was still more amazing. The prophet had said of him that he would be despised, rejected, forsaken, cut off, having nothing.

2. The vigorous growth (v. 32). From the very beginning of the movement inaugurated by Christ his influence has gone forth so that there is no power or influence today in the earth so great as that which calls itself Christian.

3. The lodging capacity. The birds which find lodgment in the branches do not represent, as is commonly interpreted, the children of men who find safety and salvation in the church, because church truth is not now under consideration. It is the mystery of the Kingdom which was proclaimed as at hand by John the Baptist. This Kingdom passed into abeyance when Jesus was crucified and it shall come into realization when Jesus comes back to earth again. The believer in Christ becomes a vital part of his body and even is necessary to its strength and fruitfulness. The bird in the branches is something foreign to and independent of the tree. The branches increase the growth of the tree but birds are injurious and burdensome to it. They are predatory—waiting to pluck off the tender buds or to prey upon the ripened fruit. The effect of such lodging is evil and blighting to the tree.

Love

Love is known by its gifts, not by its receipts. "God so loved the world, that he gave his only-begotten Son." God loved; he gave. If we love, we will give. Christ said, "If ye love me, keep my commandments." Then if we love him, we will demonstrate our love primarily by obeying him. And when we obey him, we will fully realize the meaning of giving because we will be anxious to tell others of Christ. Only by obedience and self-sacrifice can we walk in his steps.

AGE'S PLACE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

IT'S hard for age, when age is gray,
To keep its place. The things we say

Are tiresome things, the things we do
Are foolish and old fashion, too.
Now age must tell its tales no more
(It may have told that tale before),
Although within its words appears
The ripe experience of years.

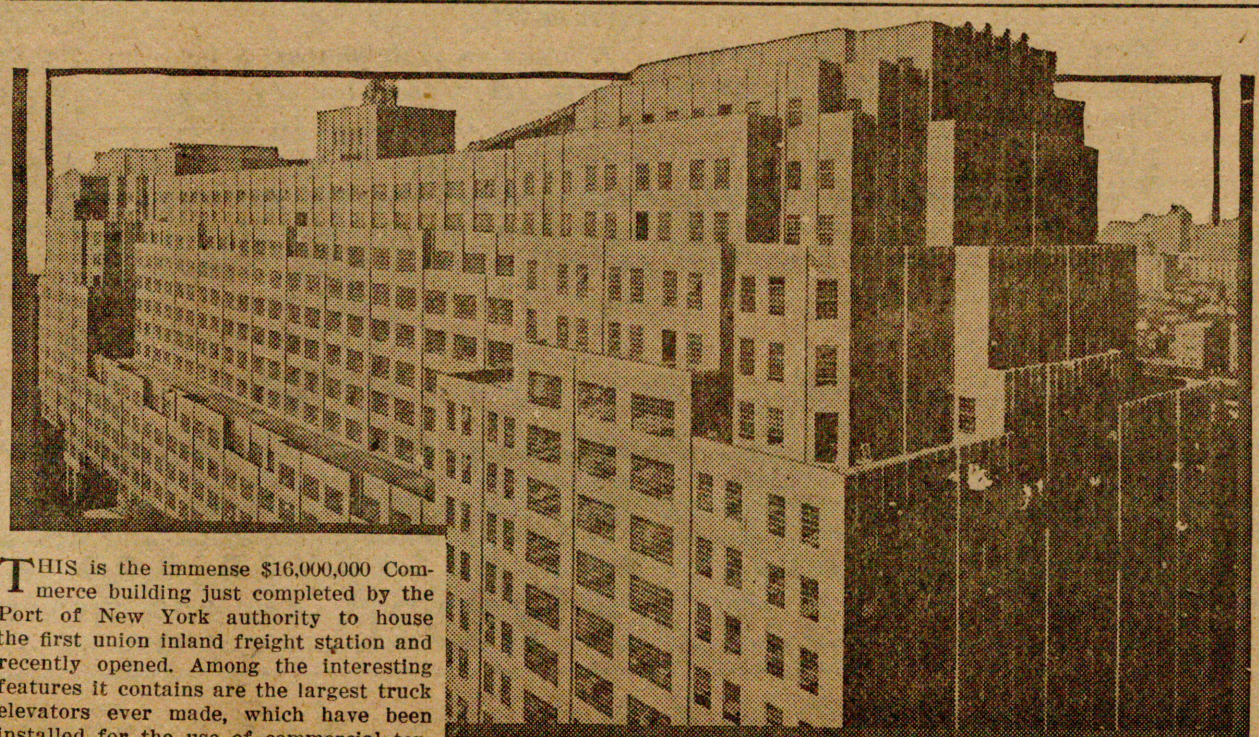

This makes it hard; were we not told,
We would not know that we are old.
To us the world seems just as bright,
And living has the same delight.
It's hard to keep our place beside
The hearth, the hopes of life denied,
But in the world now youth prevails
And has no time for old men's tales.

It's hard to play the part of age
Still strong enough to tread the stage.
Youth must remind us, youth must frown,

Before the young and old sit down.
We might forget how very small
We are, that we are old at all.
Our lips still laugh, our pulses race—
It's hard for age to keep its place.

The May Day Mystery

By Octavus Roy Cohen

One of the best of the stories by this famous author

Murder is done on the quiet campus of a large Southern University. Around three persons—two students, one the most popular girl in the college, and a professor—is woven a web of circumstantial evidence and incriminating motives.

A second crime—apparently unconnected with the murder—is committed and to solve this is called Detective Jim Hanvey, a figure well known to Mr. Cohen's readers and who here makes his first appearance in a story of serial length. As the clues become more numerous and the trail more involved, the sleuthing methods of Detective Hanvey are followed with increasing zest until the reader fairly races ahead in an effort to check up on his deductions.

It's the mark of a winner when a detective story moves along with the growing tenseness and excitement of The May Day Mystery. Ingenious, swift and unusual, it is a yarn to thrill the most jaded mystery fan.

It will run serially in these columns, and no reader should miss the opening chapters. If you start it we know you'll await anxiously each new installment.

MOKENA

A police dog which has been roaming about the village, has killed a number of chickens, ducks and a pet cat. The owner of the dog should take care of it and if he refuses to do so, the dog should be shot as it is a nuisance.

Harry Schoen has received a letter from his brother in South Dakota in which the latter reported a heavy snow and a temperature of 40 below zero.

Mrs. Viola Kaufman, nee Kester, died suddenly of heart trouble in her home in Pullman Friday night. She was buried in St. John cemetery Monday afternoon.

F. M. Story will have an auction sale February 25. He expects to move to Michigan sometime in March.

Mrs. Arthur Hall who is a patient in Michael Reese hospital, Chicago is not able to return yet, but is doing as well as can be expected. We all hope for her complete recovery.

The Mokena Motor Sales recently sold two Chevrolet cars, one going to Gary, Indiana and the other to Wm. Hentsch Jr., of Mokena.

Mrs. Eleanor Ferguson of Joliet who has been ill, has recovered and has resumed her duties as a teacher in the Mokena public school.

A suggestion has been made that the village ought to set aside a small fund for the purpose of clearing the snow from the sidewalks as many people do not clean their walks and property whose owners do not reside here, also is not cared for and walks on such property are not cleaned.

In some towns a small snow plow drawn by a horse, is used to do this work. It would not cost much to have such an outfit here and then all walks would be cleaned and the work of keeping the walks clean would not fall all on a few public spirited citizens.

A drive is on in the school to take subscriptions for various magazines, the school receiving 50 percent of the sales.

To Hold Clinic

There will be a clinic for crippled children and adults on Wednesday, February 22nd, between the hours of 8:30 and 12:00 a. m., in the Public Health Council rooms, Joliet, Ill.

Doings of the Sedan

Prairie 4-H Club

Oh say, by the way did you hear about it? The newly organized 4-H Club of Sedan Prairie together with other members of the Willing Workers Club met at the home of their leader, Mrs. Emil Kampe Monday for an all day sewing session.

The almost impassable roads, snowdrifts and all the other hard luck experiences could not dampen the spirits of that happy crowd.

Those who were forced to come in a hobsied, their hearts were over flowing with joy and mirth from the effects of the old fashioned sleigh-ride in the crisp, exhilarating air.

The fortunate ones who were able to be present were: Mrs. Henry Feigl and daughters Elsie and Helen, Mrs. Emil Kampe's sister and her daughter of Colorado, Mrs. Henry Hase of Tinley Park, the Misses Ruth Schumacher, Sylvia Feigl, Nellie Steinborn, Mrs. Edw. Kampe, Mrs. Fred Stuckey and Mrs. Wm. Tweitmeyer and daughter Melinda.

Work on the appliqued clover leaf designed quilt was continued. Needles, thimbles, scissors, chatting, laughter, jokes, all were in rhythm with the busy stitchers. And how interested, ambitious and industrious every one seemed to be! How the time did fly and before we were aware of it, appetizing odors from the kitchen where Mrs. Kampe was hustling hither and thither preparing a sumptuous dinner, was scented in the air.

And boy, oh boy what a dinner, yum, yum, yum! Chicken, roast beef, gravy, mashed potatoes, peas and carrots, pickles, pie and jello and everyone certainly did justice to that dinner. The gayety and merriment was climaxed when Mrs. Kampe sang "I Killed The Big Red Rooster Cause You Come".

In the afternoon more earnest work and soon the table was displayed with beautiful finished blocks one by one.

Later another big lunch, music and singing wherein all joined. Everyone thought it was a wonderful party and no one was astonished when later in our own individual homes the casual remark dropped by brother or husband, "Oh how I wish I could sew", for we all agree that this quilting fever somehow has an agreeable, fascinating, contagious effect.

At the close of the party were many best wishes to Mrs. Kampe and her girls for the best of success with their club and then came bye's, hope to be seeing you all again soon. School has started again after a week's vacation on account of the snow.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Feigl also Mr. and Mrs. John Feigl were city visitors Tuesday.

Streets of Cairo to Be Feature At The World's Fair

The streets of Cairo, where Little Egypt thrilled visitors to the World's Columbian Exposition just forty years ago with her exotic dancing, will come into glamorous existence again at A Century of Progress - Chicago's 1933 World's Fair.

Contracts have just been signed for the construction of an Oriental Village that will present all the life and color, the arts and customs, the industries and amusements of Damascus, Syria, Persia, Morocco, Tunis, Algiers, Tripoli, Egypt, Turkey, Palestine, Arabia, Hindustan and Afghanistan.

The exterior will be truly Oriental in design, construction and color, based on photographs of Cairo, Jerusalem, Constantinople and other romantic spots in the Near East. Mosques, minarets and winding streets will be reproduced with such fidelity as to give the visitor the illusion of being in the Orient.

Merchants will bargain in picturesque shops and bazaars that line the streets, and wood workers, ivory carvers, metal engravers, weavers, embroiderers, rug makers and other skilled craftsmen will ply their trades as they squat beside their looms or work benches.

Along these streets will be oriental coffee shops, where the visitor may stop to sip Turkish coffee or puff a Narghileh (or water pipe). Or he may mount camel or donkey and view the sights from their backs.

Everywhere there will be open-air entertainers — even the celebrated sand diviners of Egypt. Sand and shells will come from far-off land of the Nile.

In five theaters, visitors will see the cream of oriental entertainment—dancing girls, dancing men, wrestling, fencing, sword fighting to the music of flageolets and drums.

A Moorish theatre will present skilled acrobats, jugglers and magicians. An African theater will show snake charmers practising their strange arts on five-foot cobras, as well as trained baboons and goats.

In a large arena, with a seating capacity of 3,000, hourly performances will be held representing the wild life of mountain and desert tribes. Horsemen from Arabia and Persia, in gorgeous costumes and trappings, will perform feats of skill. There will be war dances and camel races and attractions never before shown outside the Orient.

At 11 o'clock each night there will be a spectacular performance, of all these features, augmented by competition between Turkish wrestlers, Egyptian fighters and athletes of this country.

Two exhibit halls will contain such curios as mummies, hidden treasures including some taken from King Tut's tomb if they are obtainable, rare pottery and stone age relics never before shown in the United States.

The Oriental Village will cover about three and one-half acres in the Midway and will be located south of Twenty-third Street with part lying east and part west of Leif Erikson Drive.

Wire Net Protects Long Distance Lines

Wire net protecting telephone wires from quarry blasting on Columbia River highway near Rocky Point, Oregon. Circle shows dents in netting made by blasted rocks.

An enormous "birdcage" enclosing telephone wires is the wonder of travelers along Oregon's lower Columbia River highway, near Rocky Point.

Bombardment of rock fragments blasted from a nearby quarry sheared off many long distance lines linking Astoria and Portland, until engineers of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. devised a novel netting of heavy wire to ward off the unusual barrage. The cage is more than one-eighth of a mile long, and 24 feet wide at most points.

The high velocity of stones hurled by quarry blasts is proved by deep dents in all sections of the netting, which warded off the flying fragments.

Voice of a Snake

Besides the little hiss that seems to be common with most snakes they are generally incompetent to make any noise. There is one snake, however, the big water python or anaconda of Brazil, which gives a peculiar piercing cry at night.

TO MOTHERS
whose children won't
EAT

Nature knows best. Never coax a child to eat! Remove the cause of a youngster's poor appetite. When appetite fails, tongue is coated white, eyes are a bilious yellow, don't give small children a constipating cathartic that drains the system. California syrup of figs is all the "medicine" they require.

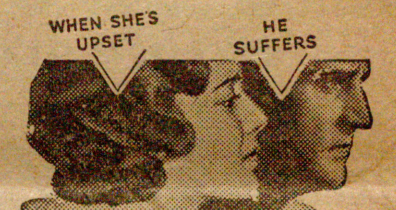

Specialists will tell you that a sluggish appetite almost always means the child has a sluggish colon. Correct this condition called stasis, and see how quickly a listless, drooping boy or girl begins to eat—and gain! The only "medicine" such children seem to need is pure, unadulterated fig syrup.

Children who get syrup of figs, now and then, soon have the appetite and energy of young animals! They keep well and avoid colds and sluggish spells.

Nature never made a finer laxative for children; and they all love the wholesome, fruity flavor of the real California syrup of figs. It's purely vegetable, but every druggist has it all bottled, with directions. Begin with it at once. The very next day, your child will be eating better and feeling better. Keep on with the syrup of figs a few days and see amazing improvements in appetite, color, weight, and spirits.

The promises made by the bottlers of California Syrup of Figs are true, and it will do the same for you, if it's genuine CALIFORNIA. Don't accept substitutes.

Beans Are Bully

EVERYBODY who knows beans likes them. Not only baked beans and those bean-hole beans with all the tang of outdoor cooking, but lima beans and red kidney beans. But not everybody knows how many ways there are to cook them. Here are a few recipes which will help.

Cream of Lima Bean Soup: Add one slice onion to the contents of a No. 2 can of lima beans, simmer for three minutes, and then press through a sieve. Make a white sauce of two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour and two cups milk. Add to the bean puree. Season to taste with salt and pepper, add one cup hot cream, and serve in cups with a sprinkling of minced parsley on top. Serves six.

Kidney Bean Luncheon Dish: Turn the contents of two No. 2 cans red kidney beans into a sauce pan, and add the contents of an 8-ounce can crushed Hawaiian pineapple and two diced oranges. Cook for six or eight minutes and serve. Serves eight.
Here's a recipe that will make baked beans a dish to boast about. Bully for Breakfast

Baked Beans with Frizzled Ham: Turn the contents of a No. 2 can of baked beans (preferably without tomato sauce) into a baking dish and pour over one-third cup chili sauce. Heat in hot oven. Meanwhile frizzle six thin slices cold boiled ham in a hot skillet, then lay on top of the beans and serve at once. Serves six.*

WELLS TO DESCRIBE

NATIONAL CAPITAL

"In the National Museum at Washington, D. C., there are 13 million objects and no one man has seen them all. If a person were to spend a minute on each object during each eight hour working day, it would take him 74 years to complete the job," says Carveth Wells, Continental Oil Company radio entertainer, who will devote his regular Wednesday night broadcast on Feb. 22 to the nation's capital. An unusual feature of the program, which will be broadcast over 23 N. B. C. stations, will be the introduction of the ghost of Pierre L'Enfant, French engineer in the American Revolutionary army, who first conceived the present day arrangement of Washington's buildings and streets. Many other interesting facts concerning America's most beautiful city and its residents are included.

The Conoco program may be heard by local listeners who tune in on station WMAQ Wednesday night at 9:30 o'clock.

After a Hard-Fought Game A Glass of Frosted Coffee

By Sarah Blackwell
Coffee Service Institute

WHEN the sports enthusiasts among your friends drop on your doorstep weary and warm and generally "let down" after the exhilaration of a hard-fought game, they will welcome nothing so much as a tall glass of frosted coffee. Frosted coffee is a delightful ice-cream variation of iced coffee, and if your guests are not already familiar with the refreshing and invigorating effects of properly made iced coffee, you should surely introduce it to them.

Making good iced coffee is a very simple matter for the hostess. If the coffee that suits your taste is freshly roasted and correctly ground for your method of making—fine for drip pot, medium for percolator, and coarse for boiled coffee—when you buy it, you are sure of the maximum in coffee flavor for your beverage.

Of course, you must maintain the maximum flavor by measuring your coffee and water accurately and by brewing the coffee a very short time.

For iced coffee, the beverage must be freshly made just before serving. Coffee left over from breakfast to cool has lost most of the delicate flavor and aroma which we prize.

Make coffee by your favorite method, but use about twice the usual amount of ground coffee for one cup of water. I double the amount of coffee because the ice dilutes it. And with excellent coffees selling as low as twenty cents a pound, I don't feel extravagant either.

Frosted Coffee

1 quart strong coffee
1 1/2 pint of vanilla ice cream
1 cup of cream
1/4 cup sugar

Chill coffee quickly. Mix it with sugar, cream and half of the ice cream. Half fill glasses with crushed ice and pour beverage over it. Top each glass with a dash of ice cream. Serves six.
